Dear Mr Stockton,

Thank you for your response of May 8. I am afraid though that either you did not read my letter fully or did not understand it.

I do not have the receipts for the memory sticks but I do have proof of purchase which I submitted with the letter. In case you missed it, it is the first attachment to this e-mail.

You will have this purchase on your system in any case, so feel free to double check it.

I want a full refund plus at least 30 pounds for the time, effort, and inconvenience this has caused me. You can send me a cheque for this or a PayPal. When I have received this payment I will return the memory sticks and the packaging.

If I do not receive satisfaction by the designated date I will sue your company in the county court which will cost more as well as bad publicity.

See the second attachment for proof of intent. This is my final word on the matter.

Yours Faithfully,
A Baron
